MR. JOHNSON WITH THE PRESIDENT.

(Correspondence of the Cincinnati Commercial.)

WASHINGTON, July 3 1867.

I told Mr. Johnson what, in my judgment, were the views of leading Southern men on the subject of reconstruction under the Military Act; that the mode which was being adopted by a certain class of worthless and irresponsible men to secure negro votes would engender strife between the negroes and whites in the South, and lead to endless trouble, if not war and bloodshed; that my own observations led me to believe that the negroes were taught by these low-lived fellows to look upon the whites as their natural enemies, and that I did not see how, with that idea once prevalent among the negroes, the two races could live together in the South. "They can't do it," said Mr. Johnson. "A war of races is inevitable if such a state of affairs goes on. People may laugh at the idea of a war of races now, but it will be brought about by such doctrines as these." He then remarked that negro suffrage would have been brought about by State action—that it was inevitable, and would not have been resisted by the Southern States if left to themselves. It might not have come as soon as it has been forced upon them by Congress; but, said he, "it would have come quite as soon as it ought to have come, and quite as soon as the negroes were fit for it."

In reply to a question, I told the President that I had seen very few men in the South who were in any true sense of the word rebels, and that these few were men who had been in the rebel army; that I thought most of what was called "disloyalty" was the effect of the unjust and ungenerous treatment of the South by Congressional legislation since the close of the war. He replied that he did not believe that there were many rebels in the South, and that especially that the men who had fought against the Union were not rebels now, and had no desire or intention to rebel again.

He seemed to be very deeply interested in the affairs of Tennessee, and listened attentively to what I told him of my travels through that State. I was surprised to find him so well posted even as to the names of men who are candidates for office there. I was describing to him the style of a man who is running on the confiscation platform at Nashville; told him he was a worthless scrub who was accused of stealing everything he could lay his hands on, and didn't deny it, and who, as I learned at Rome, Georgia, while there was an original and foul-mouthed, secessionist.

"Oh, yes," said he "you mean Mason."

In regard to the Brownlow militia, he said he had received a hundred petitions from the best people of Tennessee, asking him to send United States troops there to protect them against the outrages now being committed by this "State guard." I asked him if he could, under the Constitution, send troops into Tennessee without the consent of the Governor or legislature. He replied that that was a difficult question which he had not yet determined. He certainly could send troops there on railroads, and station them at Knoxville, Nashville, Chattanooga, and such points, and if any disturbance occurred while these troops were there, it would be the duty of the commanding officer to use them in suppressing it. He feared very much that Brownlow's militia would provoke riot and bloodshed. I told that was what they were organized for, and the only question was whether, when they got ready for fight, they should have armed soldiers or unarmed citizens to shoot at. I thought the best way would be to regard the militia as an insurrection and send soldiers to suppress it, and clean it out. He didn't know, he said, what was best to be done; he wanted to see the peace of the State preserved, but didn't know best how to preserve it. He regarded the State government of Tennessee as the worst despotism he had ever heard of—a military despotism in its worst form—and about the meanest despot he ever heard of at the head of it. Some men make even a despotism a respectable sort of a government, said he, Brownlow can't get up a decent despotism. He believed the people of Tennessee would live quietly and obey the laws and Constitution, if let alone, and that they did not need any militia there at all, and that half the trouble in that State was brought about by Northern men going down there to stir up trouble and make capital out of it.

The conversation then turned upon Gen. Sheridan and the conduct of affairs in Louisiana. The President spoke with great warmth and earnestness when he referred to this subject. At times his voice rose high enough for an audience of five hundred, though I was the only person in the room, and was sitting within two feet of him. "Now," said he "General Sheridan says he had to remove Governor Wells because he was an impediment in the way of reconstruction. He doesn't say how he was an impediment, he doesn't say in what way he had obstructed him in his official duties, but merely says he was an impediment, and removes him. Well, how much better has he got along since he removed him? Has that helped him any? I can't see that it has! And, again, suppose I should replace Wells, how would that obstruct the execution of the law? These are questions which no one has attempted to answer."

A little later he said:

"They have talked about my putting impediments in the way of the execution of this law. I have done nothing of the kind, and don't intend to—never thought of doing it. They have spoken of the Attorney-General's opinion as an obstruction. That's all nonesense. It's no such thing. The removal of civil officers doesn't assist the execution of this bill at all. It has nothing to do with it."

I then told him that Mr. Wilson had prepared a bill to offer in the Senate, giving the military commanders the power to remove all civil officers, or, rather, vacating all civil officers and athorizing the military commanders to fill them by appointment, re-appointment or election.

"Well," said he, "that won't help reconstruction at all. The few offices there are there don't affect the execution of the law one way or the other, and it would be a good deal better to let men serve out their term of office, and, when they run out, order an election to fill them."

I spoke of Gen. Sheridan's orders and dispatches as insubordinate, and such as the people of the north ought not to applaud; that the same state of affairs, during the war, might have led to incalculable evil in the army, and that it was just as if Gen. Meade should have telegraphed to Mr. Lincoln that if Grant's policy was carried out, the Army of the Potomac would soon be surrendered to Gen. Lee. "That's just about it," said the President "and the people ought to see that encouraging such things is bringing the office of President into disrespect, no matter what they think of me." He said nothing whatever against Sheridan, unless what I have just related be viewed in that light, but I could easily see from his manner that he fet very keenly the attempts of that military chieftain to bring him and his office into contempt. Just here, perhaps, I may as well state that I have very good authority for setting at rest all anxiety on the subject of Sheridan's removal. Nothing of the kind will be attempted; and if any of the "Generals commanding" in the South wan political promotion, they must seek it in some other way than by tying to get the President to tread on their coat tails. He won't do it.

Referring to the subject of impeachment, which I had introduced in some remarks as to what Congress would attempt at the present session, the President asked me if the Judiciary Committee had had another meeting, or had made up its report yet. I told him I thought it held its last meeting to-day, (Tuesday) and that it was understood that its members were divided; four for impeachment, three for censure and two for acquittal. He smiled at the idea of a "censure" from political opponents, and thought that it might be kept as a standing report for all administrations opposed to Congress. I asked him if he had read Greeley's testimony, published that day in the Tribune. No, he said, he had not and asked me what it was about. I told him that it related entirely to the bailing of Jeff. Davis, and entirely exonerated him from any hand in the matter. "O pshaw," said he; "what had I to do with bailing Jeff. Davis?" and he smiled again. I told him I was glad Greeley had run off with the manuscript of his testimony and furnished it to the public, through the Tribune and the Commercial; that it would do good in showing to the country the style of testimony they have been taking. He laughed again and said, "I wish they had published it all as they took it down. Of course I don't know what they've got against me, but I know what the facts are, and I'm not afraid of them." I asked him if he knew the character of some of the witnesses they had brought against him, such as Baker's detectives. He said he did not, and I inferred from the way he said it that he didn't care much who they were. I told him a few incidents in the career of his "great prosecutor," Mr. Ashley—various historic and bigraphic matters connected with the Toledo member. He laughed very heartily and said, "That man seems to be very strangely infatuated about some things; I can't understand him at all"—and then laughed again, and added—"but perhaps he means well enough." Mr. Johnson had heard that afternoon that Stanley Matthews, of Cincinnatti, had been summoned before the Sudiciary Committee, and asked me if I knew what the object was. I told him I did not; that I had seen Col. Matthews in Washington but had not learned his mission here. I asked him what Col. Mrtthews could possibly have known about him. He said he did not know, unless the Judiciary Committee wanted to go back to the time when he (Johnson) was Provisional Gov. of Tennessee. Matthews was then Provost Marshal of Nashville. I replied to this, that all I knew about it was that Ashley asked Mr. Bingham during the last session of the Thirty-ninth Congress if a President could be impeached for what he had done before he became President, and that Bingham very promptly replied by calling Ashley a fool. "That was a pretty sharp answer," said the President, with another big laugh.

My own impressions, as the result of the interview are these: That the President, whatever may be his opinions of the constitutionality or the propriety of the Military Law, never had any other purpose with reference to it than that enforcing it justly and properly, that if he feels a little vexed when he finds Major-Generals who never read a law book, running a tilt with such a lawyer as Attorney-General Stanbery on the interpretation of a statute, he is not much to blame; that he will not and ought not to allow Brownlow's militia to create bloodshed in Tennessee; and that he is very little concerned about the impeachment, which he evidently regards as a big joke.

MACK.

WOOED AND WON.—Some one has said, "Love laughs at locksmith's;" another, that the course of true love never does run smooth." Be that as it may, Gretna Green, in its palmiest days, never witnessed a happier denouement to a troublesome courtship than took place in this city yesterday. A gentleman in this place was about to remove to Salt Lake City with his family. His daughter, it is said, he intended should marry one of his own choice, while the daughter and a young gentleman of this place had already decided upon the question differently. The parents were, however, inexorable despite the entreaties of numerous friends of the young lady, and she did not wish to disobey their commands. Quite an excitement was occasioned by the affair, but she finally agreed to go with her parents and the train started for Utah. The friends of the young people were not, however, pleased with the condition of affairs, and a warrant was issued and served on the old gentlemen, and he was brought back to town. In the meantime the young gentleman, accompanied by a couple of friends, followed the train with the carriage to where it was encamped, some ten miles from the city. The young lady concluded to return, and, in as short a time thereafter as a dashing team, under a rigorous application of silk, could convey them to the city, they were standing in the presence of the Chief Justice, surrounded by a goodly host of their devoted friends, and when the words were uttered, "What God has joined together let no man put asunder," a score of hearts said a fervent "Amen," and invoked the choicest of heaven's blessings upon two universal favorites, now happily wedded. The incidents of the day were rich food for a reporter, but of such a personal character that we feel it but right to quit delineating them.—Montana Post.

ADVERTISING.—In relation to advertising, Horace Greeley has credit for giving utterance to the homely truth that the trader who pays more shop rent than advertising, don't know his business. It may seem to be putting it very strong, but it is nevertheless too true. It is a settled fact that he who has succeeded has been a liberal advertiser, while on the other hand those who have failed in business have not, as a general rule, been in the habit of advertising their business.

The Madison Argus told a newly married editorial friend that he would find a difference between the quiet married and editorial experience. In the one case the darkness was cozy, and in the other the copy comes like this: "Dolphin sewing, never; and above something which thou knowest not.

IS EVERYTHING TRUE?

A very few of our exchanges come to us, or have come, that doubt the truth of our assertions in relation to matters and affairs in Utah, and have the impudence to add, "if half of it is true it is bad enough." Do you imagine we are treating on mythology or fiction? If so you are greatly mistaken. We are ready to substantiate anything and everything that comes from our pen. We do not "black-mail" individuals as a sore-headed scribbler of of a daily paper here asserts. We do not wage a war against the Mormons, but only lay before the civilized world the iniquitous practices and crimes committed here in this new Jerusalem. The dirty insinuations of that conceited assinego are without effect upon our escutcheon. He dares not give publicity to refute the charges and accusations made by the VEDETTE; but sits behind his breast-works making grimmaces and writhing in pain. "Black-mailing" certain individuals and companies, hey? Why don't you take their part, or hire some one that will, and pay him with carrots and pumpkins, you polygamous scamp? But his conscience troubles him so much that he has not time or can not attend to anything, and, besides, he has taken to nursing babies and is, so rumor says, on the eve of taking another third to his anxious, swelling bosom. If he succeeds and the law does not catch him in its iron grip, may lightning overtake him. A pretty predicament that inkslinger is in. Get a yoke of bulls and draw him out. And, last, but not least, tell us again that we "black-mail" the innocents. "Lay on Macduff, and damned be he that first cries hold, enough."

A Correspondence between United States Minister Asboth and Minister of Foreign Affairs of the Argentine Confederation is published. The former, it appears, was determined to press upon the Argentine government, friendly officers of the American government, and in doing so, took a somewhat captious meaning out of the latter refusing such offers; the consequence was, Gen. Ashboth has been curtly told that his remarks would not be considered; that the conduct of another United States Minister, Mr. Washburne, called for an enquiry on the part of his government.

Losadaso's forces refuse to recognize Juarez. Castille and Aguire have been sentenced to be shot. The Cork Examiner of July 26th, says, every indication points a certainty of war between France and Prussia, as a council of war at this present moment being held in Russia, between the staffs of the armies of Russia and Prussia, under the presidency of the Czar himself. Plans of campaigns suggested by probable coalitions between France and other States are under consideration. It is further asserted, that Prussia is eager to begin war immediately, before France gets into attitude. Russia, however inclines postponement.

BOOTH'S DIARY.

(From the London Times, June 6.)

The confessions of Wilkes Booth, the murderer of President Lincoln, lately published by the order or permission of the United States Government, are calculated to raise a moral question which it is important that public opinion should lay forever at rest. An old heathen, doubtless, could be guilty of conscious and deliberate crime, and he also might, according to his lights, construe into a meritorious action what would strike us as a most heinous offense; but we hardly know of an instance in antiquity in which "evil was done that good might come from it." It is this notable compromise with principle, we conceive, that must be looked upon as the especial offspring of perverted Christianity. When Booth complains of the harsh judgment of his "degenerate" countrymen against him, of their blind inability to perceive the identity between his own act and that "for which Brutus was honored," he is simply a fool; for in Brutus' own estimation and that of his age, the death of Cæsar was a deed of "killing no murder;" but when the analogy is carried on between the deed at Washington and the exploit which "made Tell a hero," we fear we cannot reject the taunt thrown into the teeth of the present generation, as wholly undeserved. We never had, never can have, any scruple about dismissing Booth as a stage struck maniac, a wretched, morbid egotist, whose most appropriate no less than most efficient punishment should be a careful avoidance of any mention of his name, for good or evil. It was, doubtless, in the most deplorable ages of rabid sectarianism that Heaven's blessings were called down upon the head of Jacques Clement, of Ravaillac, and of scores of other political homicides. It was religious frenzy that made Philip II. of Spain the most consummate of midnight murderers; but it was not out of fanatical zeal, but of sheer unbelief, that the Jesuits armed the hands of bigots. The origin of modern political assassination must be sought in a period somewhat anterior to the Protestant Reformation. We must look for it among the accomplished, and, on the whole, not profligate skeptics, who, on the revival of literature, thought they could engraft Greek and Roman virtues upon the rude and gloomy rule of life on which mediæval civilization had been based; among the worldly yet lofty intellects, who dreamed of a more genial and sympathetic community than that which Francis of Assisi and Domnic of Guzman had established on groveling asceticism and ferocious intolerance. In Italy, especially, where the reproduction of republican forms and terms in the free cities encouraged the spread of Pagan maxims, regicide, under the spacious name of tyrannicide, was exalted into the grandest achievement. Not only were such men as the slayers of Gian Maria Viscount or Pier Luigi Farnese true patriots of the most spotless fame, but even base minions like Lorenzino de Medici, when they took off a companion of debauchery like the Duke Alessandrio, were deemed by that deed of dastardly treachery to have redeemed a whole life of infamy, and dared to write on their dagger: "Vincit amor patriæ, landisque immensa cupido." Between their priestly and their literary instructors no wonder if the most crooked notions have been entertained, and to a great extent acted upon, both in Italy and in other classical and Romanist countries; but with us Protestants, with us men of Teutonic blood, we do not see why a spade should not be called a spade, or why murder should under any circumstances be accounted heroism. Nothing should certainly deprive such beings as Charlotte Corday of any meed of praise due to their characters previous to their deadly deeds; nothing should interfere with our admiration for the fortitude with which they bore the consequences; but surely nothing, also, should extenuate the gravity of the deeds themselves, nothing should give weight to the motives or objects by which such deeds were actuated. Booth's action, according to his own confession, was purer than Tell's. "He (Booth) had no wrong of his own to avenge; he hoped for no gain." Woe to us if any one, upon any ground, we allow the end to justify the means! Gessler and Marat and the Duke of Parma may have been monsters in human form; Abraham Lincoln and Wilhelm Peel may have been benefactors of their race; but it was not a whit more lawful to rid the earth of the former than to cut the latter short in their career of usefulness. It is this trifling with sacred principle, this halo of romantic and dramatic interest awakened in favor of virtues out of date, this perpetual relapse into Paganism, which hurts the imagination of crack-brained wretches like Booth, and brings them to their deaths in uncertainty whether they deserve God and man's curses or their blessings. The The cause for which Robert Lee fought and Stonewall Jackson died might have had enough in it to stimulate exertions but what could the death of Lincoln or even of Seward have achieved for it, triumph! There is no instance on record, we can conceive of no combination; in which the removal of one man can permanently affect the course of destinies. Cæsar falls, but Rome does not live. It was at the Sempach or Morgarten, not at the Hohlweg, that Switzerland was born. It was with Robespierre on the scaffold, not with Marat in the bath, that the Reign of Terror came to a close. In too many instances the patriot's dagger has only riveted the chains it aspired to sever, and aggravated the evils it longed to redress. Providentially, also, in some cases, it was the regicide's failure that accomplished his object, when his success would only have frustrated it.

These are obvious truisms, and we are ready enough to acknowledge them in cold blood; but we are apt to forget our ethics, not only at the opera but before any actual exhibition of those merely physical powers of endurance of which the commonest malefactor is capable. Booth boasts of the firmness with which he rode sixty miles on the night of the murder "with the bone of his broken leg tearing the flesh at every jump." Ravaillac was equally impassive when torn to pieces with red hot pinchers. There is still an incredible amount of Pagan, or, indeed, red Indian materialism among the best of us. We attach an absurdly undue importance to a man's mere steadiness of nerve, to his superiority over physical pain. Strong, indeed, must be our instinct of life if, by mere defiance of death, the suicide, the duelist, or the felon on the scaffold can so readily command our sympathy. It is not by our disregard of life that we can best play our part, but by an endeavor to make it valuable to others no less than to ourselves.

SAN FRANCISCO, August 2.

The House Carpenter's Eight-Hour League, No. 2, met last night at the Mechanic's Institute building. Considerable feeling was manifested in regard to the hands who had quit work at McDonald & Magill's mill. The proprietors refused to discharge two men who had been expelled from the League for violation of their pledge, whereupon the rest of the hands discontinued work and the mill stopped. The Leagues seem determined to build a mill of their own, and until then to pay wages to the men thrown out of employment. A committee was appointed to confer with a similar one from other Leagues in relation to forming a joint stock company for the purpose of various kinds of co-operative labor and to build a mill for getting out sash, blinds, doors, etc.

KNOW THY DESTINY.

MADAME E. F. THORNTON, the great English Astrologist, Clairvoyant and Psychometrician, who had astonished the scientific classes of the Old World, has now located herself at Hudson, N. Y. Madame Thornton possesses such wonderful powers of second sight, as to enable her to impart knowledge of the greatest importance to the single or married of either sex. While in a state of trance she delineates the very features of the person you are to marry, and by the aid of an instrument of intense power, known as the Psychomotrope, guarantees to produce a life-like picture of the future husband or wife of the applicant, together with the date of marriage, position in life, leading traits of character, &c. This is no humbug, as thousands of testimonials can assert. She will send when desired a certified certificate or written guarantee that the picture is what it purports to be. By inclosing a small lock of hair and stating place of birth, age, disposition and complexion, and inclosing fifty cents and stamped envelope addressed to yourself, you will receive the picture and desired information by return mail. ☞ A YOUNG LADY returning to her country home, after a sojourn of a few months in the City, was hardly recognized by her friends. In place of a coarse, rustic, flushed face, she had a soft ruby complexion of almost marble smoothness, and instead of twenty-three she really appeared but eighteen. Upon inquiry as to the cause of so great a change, she plainly told them that she used the Circassian Balm, and considered it an invaluable acquisition to any Lady's toilet. By its use any Lady or Gentleman can improve their personal appearance an hundred fold. It is simple in its combination, as Nature herself is simple, yet unsurpassed in its efficacy in drawing impurities from, also healing, cleansing and beautifying the skin and complexion. By its direct action on the cuticle it draws from it all its impurities, kindly healing the same, and leaving the surface as Nature intended it should be, clear, soft, smooth and beautiful. LOST CHILDREN.—The "wet nurse" in yesterday's issue says a child was lost in this spacious city. We don't wonder at that, there being so many children to one father that they would naturally get mixed up and lost. Oh! what a delicious thing Polygamy is!

HO! ALL YE THAT THIRSTETH!—The Saloon formerly kept by Scholl & Zabriskie is now "run" by Shuey & Foster, who are determined to keep the best beverage to be found. Go there after reading their ad. in this issue.

GRASSHOPPERS ON THE RAMPAGE.—By our exchanges we notice that the visits of these uninvited and unwelcome guests, are not confined to the territories alone. It appears they have extensively and thoroughly visited the greater portion of Missouri, destroying the crops ad libitum. We do not note this with pleasure, although "misery likes company."

SOCIAL PARTY.—There will be a social party at the Excelsior Garden on Wednesday evening, Aug. 7th. None will be admitted to the garden without tickets to the ball. Tickets can be procured at the saloon. 1t.

BANKRUPTCY BLANKS.—We are indebted to H. H. Bancroft & Co., of San Francisco, California, for a blank form of a debtor's petition and accompanying schedules, adapted to proceedings under the new National Bankrupt law.

"EDMOND ABOUT" says "there are two things in this world which a man does not often find away from home; the first is good soup; the second is disinterested love."

A NEW FLAG.—The flag adopted by the new Dominion of Canada is composed of red, white, blue and green colors in stripes, to represent the four provinces composing the new power, with the British Union Jack in the corner.

MORTALITY IN SAN FRANCISCO.—During the last week the deaths in the city and county of San Francisco numbered 65. This, the Alta says, is a greater mortality than had been known for many months previous—the number per week ranging before that from 45 to 55. Excessive hot weather is charged with the increase.

ENLARGED.—The Daily Union VEDETTE has been considerably enlarged, resuming its former head and general appearance. It says, having struggled through the misfortunes which compelled its reduction, it again enlarges, will continue to combat prejudice and the malignant natures around it, and promises a still further enlargement. We wish the brave VEDETTE success.—R. R. Reveille.

THE PRECIOUS METALS.—At the commencement of the Christian era the amount of gold in existence was estimated at $427,000,000. When America was discovered, in 1492, this had diminished to $57,000,000. In 1800 it had risen again, through American productions, to $105,000,000; in 1700, to $351,000,000, and in 1800 to $2,951,000,000. The Russian mines were discovered in 1819 and added to the production, so that in 1848 the amount of gold in existence was estimated at $3,000,000. Then followed the gold discoveries in California in 1848, and in Australia in 1851, which have added greatly to the gold production, so that in 1858 the amount in existence was estimated at $4,000,000,000, and in 1860 at $4,600,000,000. It is estimated that from 1848 to 1860 California and Australia produced $2,000,000,000 in gold. The total production of gold during the eighteen years, from 1848 to 1866, has been estimated at $3,841,000,000, and of silver at $1,620,400,000, of which Mexico produced $580,000,000. On January 1st, 1846, gold was valued at 77s. 6d. per ounce, and silver at 5s. 3d. per ounce, the ounce of gold being thus fifte n times as valuable as the ounce of silver. Silver was at that time relatively to gold more valuable than it was in 1848, when it was quoted at 4s. 11½d. an ounce, which would make one ounce of gold equal to fifteen and five-eighths ounces of silver.

Wit and Wisdom.

It is oftener women than her wrongs that needs to be redressed.

Prentice says that the chief object of a lady in using a fan is to give herself airs.

A coquette is a rose, from which every lover plucks a leaf—the thorns are left for her future husband.

The population of Louisville, Ky., is 145,000, an increase of 65,000 in two years.

"Good blood will show itself," as the old lady said when she was struck with a redness in her nose.

A good word is an easy obligation; but not to speak ill only requires our silence, which costs nothing.

Adversity is the trial of principle; without it a man hardly knows whether or not he is an honest man.

Heaven drops little fragments of itself here and there along our way, by way of assurance that heaven and love are one.

Jinks says that cucumbers can be made into pickle while growing, if you can get a cross old maid to look over the fence at the vines twice a week.

The greatest organ in the world, says some wicked old bachelor, is the organ of speech in women, because it is an organ without "stops."

The eyes of a loving woman are wells of Paradise—mirrors in which are reflected happy thoughts, the faces of the angels that inhabit the heart.

Some crusty old bachelor slanders the female sex, by saying that the reason George Peabody is so wealthy, is because he never had a wife.

Somebody advertises for agents to retail a work, entitled "Hymenial Instructor." A cotemporary adds: "The best hymenial instructor we know of is a gushing window of twenty-five. What she don't know, there is no use learning."

The Evening Journal says that General Grant "stands alone and prominent like Coimborazo among the mountains." The Boston Advertiser thinks that if he is prominent it is hardly fair to classify him as one of the Andys.

NITRO-GLYCERINE.—Nitro-glycerine is cutting the Central Pacific railroad tunnel through the summit of the Sierra Nevada at the rate of fifty feet per week, and by mid-summer fifty miles of road will be added to the ninety-four already in operation at the California end.

Women of thieving propensities in New York, make the bosom of their dresses a receptacle for eggs. A market detective noticing the full "development" of a customer, laid his rude hand upon her, and crushing the concealed eggs, allowed her to depart with the embryo omelet.

We give the following incident prominence as indicating the state of society in a moral town known as St. Louis. A crowd had gathered on a corner, and an excited individual, panting with heat, rushed up to the scene, exclaimed:

"What's the matter?"

"Only a man killed," was the reply.

"Oh! is that all? I've been running like h—ll and d—nation. I thought it was a dog fight."

Chalk that down Telegraph.

WHICH?—A colored witness was examined in a Washington City Court to prove the identity of a white man, the other day.

District Attorney—"Did you see the man?"

"Yes, sir, I seed him!"

"Was he a white man?"

"Don't know, sir."

"Do you tell me you saw the man and can't say whether he was white or black?"

"Yes, sar, I seed him, but dar's so many white fellers callin' demselves 'niggers,' round here, I can't tell one from another."

Witness dismissed—explanation satisfactory.

HOW TO HAVE A LOVING WIFE.—A correspondent sends the following to the Phrenological Journal: If you would have a loving wife, be as gentle in your words after as before marriage; treat her quite as tenderly when a matron as when a miss; don't make her the maid of all work and ask her why she looks less tidy and neat than when you "first knew her;" don't buy cheap, tough beef, and scold because it does not come on the table "porter-house;" don't grumble about squalling babies if you cannot keep up a nursery," and remember that "baby may take after its papa" in his disposition; don't smoke and chew tobacco, and thus shatter your nerves, and spoil your temper, and make your breath a nuisance, and then complain that your wife declines to kiss you; go home joyous and cheerful to your supper, and tell your wife the good news you have heard, and not silently put on your hat and go out to the "club" or "lodge," and let her afterward learn that you spent the evening at the opera or at a fancy ball with Mrs. Dash. Love your wife; be patient; remember you are not perfect, but try to be; let whiskey, tobacco and vulgar company alone; spend your evenings with your wife, live a decent, Christian life, and your wife will be loving and true—if you did not marry a heartless beauty without sense or worth; if you did, who is to blame if you suffer the consequences.

ASTROLOGY.

THE WORLD ASTONISHED

AT THE WONDERFUL REVELATIONS MADE BY THE GREAT ASTROLOGIST,

Madame H. A. PERRIGGO.

She reveals secrets no mortal ever knew. She restores to happiness those who, from doleful events, catastrophes, crosses in love, loss of relations and friends, loss of money, &c., have become despondent. She brings together those long separated, gives information concerning absent friends or lovers, restores lost or stolen property, tells you the business you are best qualified to pursue and in what you will be most successful, causes speedy marriages and tells you the very day you will marry, gives you the name, likeness and characteristics of the person. She reads your very thoughts, and by her almost supernatural powers unveils the dark and hidden mysteries of the future. From the stars we see in the firmament—the malefic stars that overcome or predominate in the configuration—from the aspects and positions of the planets and the fixed stars in the heavens at the time of birth, she deduces the future destiny of man. Fail not to consult the greatest Astrologist on earth. It costs but a trifle, and you may never again have so favorable an opportunity. Consultation fee, with likeness and all desired information, $1. Parties living at a distance can consult the Madame by mail with equal safety and satisfaction to themselves, as if in person. A full and explicit chart, written out, with all inquiries answered and likeness inclosed, sent by mail on receipt of price above mentioned. The strictest secrecy will be maintained, and all correspondence returned or destroyed. References of the highest order furnished those desiring them. Write plainly the day of the month and year in which you were born, inclosing a small lock of hair. Address,
